Drop the Secret Loans to Mozambique

To: David Mathers, CEO of Credit Suisse International (UK); Nick Hutt, CEO of VTB Capital Plc

We are writing about the hidden $597 million loan arranged by the London branches of Credit Suisse and VTB to Proindicus in Mozambique, and the $535 million loan by VTB to Mozambique Asset Management. The loans violated Mozambique law, as they were not agreed by the Mozambique Parliament. Nor were they disclosed to the Mozambican people, the IMF or other international lenders and donors.

We believe that the people of Mozambique never provided legal consent to these loans through their agreed democratic and constitutional processes, and as a result it is wrong for Credit Suisse and VTB to profit from them. Banks that facilitate loans to an impoverished country which break the law of that country should have no expectation of getting repaid or generating income from that business.

We call on you to do the right thing and drop these debts.
